Wednesday, October 16. 1706.

From the Amsterdam Gazette, dated October 19.

Libon, September 26.

THE 12th of this Month, the Tribunal of the Inquisition made a Gaol-Delivery as is the Custom yearly, and which is call'd an Auto de Fe, or Act of Faith. A large Theatre was erected, 20 Companies of Burghers were under Arms, and the Windows and Balconies were hung with Tapistry. The Dominican Friars appear'd first, walking two and two, and were follow'd by 111 Prisoners Men and Women, Jews, who having renounc'd Judaism, wore the Yellow San Bonito with a Red St. Andrew's Cross, having each a Staff in one Hand and a Chapeler or String of Beads in the other, and a Familiar by their side; after them came Five other Prisoners, with the San Benito painted with Flames and Devils, which signified they were condemn'd to Dye, and a Priest walking by their side. They were burnt at 11 a Clock, Two of them alive, the other Three were first strangled. And thus ended this horrid Solemnity.

From the Leiden Gazette, dated Oct. 19.

From General Staremberg's Camp before Gran, Sept. 28. The 23d of this Month we pass'd the Danube over a Bridge that had been laid for that purpose near Comorra, and encamp'd at Nieswil. The 24th we continued our March further down the Danube. The 25th we came and posted our selves near the Fort of Neudorf, which the Malecontents had built during the Suspension of Arms; and our General taking a View of that Post, found it fortified more regularly than had been reported to him; and the Malecontents being summon'd, answer'd they were determin'd to defend themselves to the last Extremity: Whereupon his Excellency immediately sent to the Governour of Comorra for 4 heavy Cannon and 2 Mortars. The 26th in the Morning we receiv'd that Artillery, and having plac'd it on 2 Batteries that we had rais'd, we began to batter the Fort. The 27th we continued firing till 5 in the Evening, when the Breaches being large enough, we made an Assault and carried the Fort in less than a Quarter of an Hour. The Garrison consisting of 800 Men were put to the Sword, except about 100 that were made Prisoners, among whom were several Officers and particularly a French Brigadier nam'd Chassan who commanded in the Fort. On our side only 8 Men were kill'd, and some wounded. Among the former is Major General Saba, and among the latter M. Sickingen and Dracowitz both general Officers: We found in the Fort 10 heavy Cannon, 1 Mortar, and a great deal of Ammunition and Provisions. To Day, the 28th, we are come before Gran, to lay Siege to it; and the Malecontents not having had Time to repair the Fortifications since they took it, we hope to retake it in a few Days.

Vienna, Oct. 5. The Report we had here some Days ago of General Rabutin's Arrival about Buda, proves false, and consequently it will be some Time still before General Staremberg and the joyn. 'Tis advis'd from Segedin the 18th of last Month, that General Rabutin arriv'd the 13th between Jasprin and Gingich with his Body of Forces; that on his Approach the Malecontents quitted these 2 Places, and some other neighbouring Posts; and that his Design was to proceed directly to Erla, unless he should be hindred by Prince Ragouski and Count Berezeni, who threaten'd to oppose him with a numerous Army.

From the Paris Gazette, dated October 16.

Strasbourg, Oct. 4. The Marshal de Villars continues to fortify the Lines at Weissenbourg, with new Works. They are become inaccessible in most Places by the overflowing of Water. He has likewise set Men at Work upon Lutterbourg, which he hopes to secure from any Attack by the felling of Trees, cross the Roads, and by the Sluyces he has caus'd to be made for overflowing the Ground about it. The Enemy are still encamp'd at Hagenbach, where they waited for heavy Artillery and Mortars from Philipsbourg, which were brought up the 29th of last Month to Dachsland over against Hagenbach, where they have caus'd a Bridge to be made over the Rhine. Notwithstanding which, by Deserters and by Intelligence from their Camp we are assur'd they have laid aside the Design of attacking the Lines, finding the Enterprize too difficult. They intrench the Avenues of their Camp towards Lutterbourg. Letters from Frankfort of the 29th past advise, that Colonel Rapnitz a Saxon arriv'd there the 28th with Order to desire Passage through the Territory of the Circle of the Upper Rhine for 5 Regiments of Dragoons and 3 or 4 of Foot of King Augustus, among which are 2000 Muscovites. He reported that those Troops retiring out of Saxony the King of Sweden pursu'd them in Person as far as Weissenfels, whence he detach'd some Regiments which follow'd them so close cross Thuringia and the Country of Fulda quite to Franconia, that they were forc'd to abandon the greatest Part of their Baggage. Our Advices from Bamberg say, that the Remains of those Troops pursu'd by the Swedes had sav'd themselves, part in the Bishoprick of Wurtzbourg and part in that of Bamberg, but so fatigu'd both Men and Horses that they could hardly support themselves: That to get Lodging and Victuals they gave out they were going to join the German Army on the Upper Rhine, but that 'twas only a Pretence, and that they were so dispirited and weak that they sought only for Subsistence and Rest. However Colonel Rapnitz obtain'd a Passage for them at Frankfort, and at Schweinfurt, on Condition that they should march in small Companies, to the End they might not give the Swedes Occasion to pursue them further should they march in a Body. They write from Ratisbon, that the Envoy of King Augustus as Elector of Saxony solicits the Diet to succour his Master, fter, by Virtue of the Guaranty that was promis'd to all the Members of the Empire at the beginning of the present War: But that several Deputies answer'd him, that the Guaranty he mention'd was stipulated only with relation to the War against France and Spain, and had no regard to the Elector his Master who had been the Aggressor, and had voluntarily and without Necessity attack'd the King of Sweden, who was likewise a Prince of the Empire, and consequently had as much, or rather more Reason to demand Succour of the Diet.

From the Leiden Gazette, dated Oct. 19.

From the Imperial Camp at Hagenbach, Oct. 11. The 9th of this Month the Commissaries that went hence some Days ago to Offenbourg, sent hither a Draught of a Treaty they have concluded with the Enemy's Commissaries for the Exchange of Prisoners on both sides; and General Thungen has sent it to the Prince of Baden at Raftad, for his Approbation. The 10th 200 Men were detach'd, to mend the Roads about our Camp, which the great Rains have render'd unpassible. To Day, the 11th, we have receiv'd Advice, that the Enemy's Horse are march'd into Quarters, to Drusenheym, Haguenau, Bischweiler, and other small Towns; but that their Foot continue encamp'd behind their Lines along the Lutter.
